

State of Vermont Online University

presents our Featured Online Course,

Honoring Holiday Traditions

In today's employment world, religious and cultural differences mean organizations need to think more broadly about how to approach issues related to holidays – not just at this time of year, but all year long. Importantly, celebrations of holidays can also create practical and legal issues that must be carefully managed by employers.

Honoring Holiday Traditions

focuses on different holidays, how to deal with celebrations in the workplace, requests for time off, and other special needs. By honoring holiday traditions, participants learn how to celebrate diverse perspectives and create a workplace of inclusion.
