Born in Central America around 7000 BC, the pumpkin grows on 6 continents and can get as big as 1,700 pounds or more. Thanks partly to Halloween, when pumpkins are ceremoniously carved into ghoulish characters, American growers produce more than 1.5 billion pounds of the big orange fruit every year. That's right — pumpkin is arguably the largest member of the fruit world!

WHEN IT COMES TO NUTRITION, PUMPKIN PACKS A BIG PUNCH

Pumpkins are rich in vitamins, minerals, and antioxidants. Their multitude of nutrients and antioxidants may boost your immune system, lower your risk of certain cancers, and promote a healthy heart. They also contain a high content of beta-carotene, a carotenoid that your body converts into vitamin A. Vitamin A is helpful to protect your vision.

A GREAT COMPLEMENT TO EITHER SWEET OR SAVORY DISHES

This fruit is very versatile. If going with a savory dish, you might decide to slice a whole pumpkin by hand. Keep in mind this could be challenging, as pumpkins are tough on the outside. Once sliced in half, scoop out the seeds and any stringy parts, then slice the pumpkin into wedges. Once sliced and cut up, pumpkin can be easily roasted or pureed. Bake the seeds into a nutritious snack with a little salt, pepper, and olive oil.

PRO TIP:

Pumpkin is usually available pre cut or canned. Especially when baking with pumpkin puree, buying canned is a great way to add pumpkin to any creation! Be sure to read labels carefully, as the product should be 100% pumpkin.
